Good Interface

Airbnb is an online marketplace which lets people rent out their properties or spare rooms to guests. This website is an example of a good interface. Not only it is simple and easy to navigate but also it is also very intuitive for a user with an account or for a completely new user. At the top right of the website we can find other features that differ from the main one (looking for a home to stay in), the one the site to focusing the attention of the user.

Bad interface

This bathroom is all a bad interface, but this shower/window/toilet combination is the worst. Not only you can not access the shower properly without jumping the toilet, you also can not open the window totally. Everything is wrong, nothing is acceptable here. Possible changes are: moving the toilet to the opposite side or just rotate 180 degrees the shower so the door can be open properly.
